A thrifty colored man who works at the street car stables has hit upon a novel plan for picking up slight perquisites to his wages. He uses his spare time in picking up the nickels which are dropped in the cars and on the track and gets off and on quite a little sum together. Careless people drop money occasionally and the nickels lost getting on and off the street cars during a year amount to a snug sum.

Two quite interesting horse races took place on the race course on the race track at the driving park yesterday evening. First one between the horses of Mr. McKenzie of the O K wagon yard and R. P. Tyler, the latter gentleman's winning. Second race between the horses of E. H. Fuller and R. P. Tyler, former gentleman's horse being victorious. Both were running race, one heat for a distance of three hundred yards. Wages of $30 in each race was the amount of the stakes.

Messrs. Morrison & Fourmy have been and are at present at work upon a city directory of Waco, and will have the work completed about the latter part of August. This will be a neat and complete directory, as the above firm are experienced men in this line, having compiled directories for nearly every town in Texas.

Mr. J. H. Bird, of Tehuacanna, says with one bottle of Tucker's "Brazos Chill Cure" he broke up, last week, three cases of chills and fever. On Monday he bought two more bottles for his laborers, stating that he felt sure this medicine would keep them on their feet, whereby he would be enabled to save his crop. *

August, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kophal died yesterday evening at 6 o'clock and was buried this evening at 5 o'clock at Oakwood cemetery, the pastor of the German Lutheran church officiating. The News extends its sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Kophal in the loss of their child. *

Deputy Constable Jim Lockwood arrested a negro, John Weir, last night who was raising a disturbance at a negro's house on Elm street, East Waco. Weir was found with a pistol on his person and placed in $100 bond, which he gave. *

CITY SOLONS.

Proceedings of the City Council Meeting Last Night.

The city council met in regular session last night, a full board being present with the exception of alderman Tibbs.

The minutes were read and approved.

City Secretary F. M. Beck asked the council for leave of absence for one month, which was granted.

The report of the city sanitary officer was submitted, and stated that the sewers on several streets were out of order. A motion was made to refer report to the sanitary committee.

Alderman Stephenson, chairman of the sanitary committee, said on account of the low water in the Brazos river, the sewer drainage was above the water line and was not carried off. This created a deposit on the banks of the river, which was accumulating daily, and would, of course, be detrimental to the health of the city.

Alderman Lacy moved that the Woolen Mills and other establishments that had a large amount of waste matter from their institutions, be instructed to tap the main sewers.

Alderman Herbert moved that the sanitary officer's report be referred to sanitary committee, motion carried.

Alderman Forsgard reported plans for a new fire station. The report was referred to improvement committee to determine as to cost of erection and make necessary arrangements for building the station.

Alderman Herbert moved that Capt. J. E. Elgin, who was present be allowed to read the report of the Waco delegation to the deep water convention at Fort Worth. The motion prevailed.

Capt. Elgin said that the Waco delegation to the deep water convention, appointed by the city council which consisted of the following named gentlemen: Wm. Cameron, Wm. Breustedt, Wm. Brooks, Geo. Taylor, and J. E. Elgin, upon arrival at Fort Worth found one of the largest bodies of business men that ever assembled in the state, consisting of representative men from almost every point in Texas, together with a large delegation from other states, and all seemed to appreciate the necessity of deep water on the Texas coast. Galveston was ably represented and strongly set forth her various advantages as a commercial point and the extensive harborage she possessed. Capt. Elgin further concluded his report by making an estimate of the probable cost of deep water at Galveston and other points on the coast.

The council then, after consideration of various petitions and the disposal of necessary business, adjourned.

DEATH OF MISS MAUD BURLISON.

The Silent Messenger Claims One of Waco's Fairest Daughters.

"Can stored urn or animated bust. Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath, Can honor's voice provoke the silent dust, Or flattery soothe the dull, cold ear of death."

The News learns with sorrow of the death of Miss Maud Burlison, at 4 o'clock this morning, at the old Richard Burlison place in the western suburbs of the city, where the family reside. Miss Maud has been ill with fever for some time, but on yesterday the disease took a turn for the worse, and all during yesterday and last night she was gradually sinking, until at last the end came. Miss Burlison was in the eighteenth year of her age, and her untimely death has cast a gloom over the entire circle of her acquaintances, for a lady of a more amiable nature or lovely disposition never lived in our midst. But alas, the cruel reaper, death, cuts down, without a moment's warning, those flowers of humanity that we all love and cherish most. Miss Maud was the youngest daughter of the late Rev. Richard Burlison, who came to Waco at an early day, and in connection with his brother, Dr. Rufus Burlison, founded Waco University.

Miss Burlison leaves a mother, one sister and two brothers to mourn her death. The News extends its sincere condolence to the sorrowing relatives.

Behind the Bars.

Editor News: No class of people in Waco hall with more delight the advent of The Evening News than the prisoners in the county jail. Some kind friend sends us a copy every evening which constitutes our night reading. It passes from cell to cell until the whole 22 prisoners have been posted in regards to the doings of the outer world. When The Evening Day changed to a morning paper we were intellectually distressed at being chopped off from our night rations; but here the old adage, "everything happens for the best," asserts itself again by the birth of the Evening News while we patiently await The Day on the following morning. The jail is a very stupid place and famous for sparsity of amusements. Our colored trusty, however, affords some merriment. He seems to be specially adapted to the catching and training of mice which he exhibits every day in the run-round. When he hobbles two of them they appear so ridiculous to each other that it ends in a sharp battle. His power to charm is demonstrated by a hissing sound which causes his pets to move briskly towards him. This is our chief entertainment, interspersed occasionally with the treat of a melon from a migrating convict who happens to come in flush, or a batch of old papers from generous news vendors. Anything is acceptable, but it would not be politic for our friends to all combine and heap such luxuries upon us in a single day. Non verum. Wishing your spirited paper much success, and the typographic artists congeniality. I remain, fraternally, CELL SIX.
